

YOUTHMAN

Youthman, nah judge a book by its cover
The best you can, take another look at your brother
Youthman, nah judge a book by its cover
In each and every soul, there's a treasure to discover

Before you point your finger
Be sure your hands are clean
Nah let your biases linger
Otherwise you will pay the fees
See what it's like when you walk in mi shoes
You'll may have more compassion and feel mi blues
Please come on out of the shadows and look through my window

Youthman, nah judge a book by its cover
The best you can, take another look at your brother
Youthman, nah judge a book by its cover
In each and every soul, there's a treasure to discover

While you spread rumors and blame your neighbour
Someone is always watching you
It's not too late to change your behaviour
You just have to take another view
Let's open your door to the stranger
Learn from other civilisations
Free up your soul from your anger
And give your brother more toleration

Youthman, nah judge a book by its cover
The best you can, take another look at your brother
Youthman, nah judge a book by its cover
In each and every soul, there's a treasure to discover

Before you point your finger
Be sure your hands are clean
Nah let your biases linger
Otherwise you will pay the fees
You criticize me but you don't know mi story,
Think you're farsighted but your vision is blurry
None above, none below, all on the same boat, co we no need no raw, we're walking down the same road
Yes we're walkind down the same road,

Sharing the same fate, same destiny, same destination
